

'Positive Doubting' Is Essential for Faith Growth

Many Christians think (or fear) that if they question fundamentals of the faith, they're "flawed" as believers. But as the Bible shows, the people of God have always included the doubtful. Sarah laughed, Peter started sinking, and Thomas insisted on seeing and touching the risen Christ.

When we have doubts about something, we examine its truthfulness, we weigh and evaluate it, and we consider how much of ourselves we wish to invest in it. In other words, if we're ever going to truly own our beliefs, we must critically examine them first.

As Frederick Buechner wrote, "Doubts are the ants in the pants of faith. They keep it awake and moving." One of the greatest concepts you can convey to your teenagers is how to deal positively with doubts. "Positive doubting" isn't so much the opposite of faith as it is an element of faith, according to theologian Paul Tillich. Professor Dean Hardy, analyzing statistics in the "Pulse" section below, wrote, "When the doubts get ignored, it could eventually result in serious skepticism of one's worldview and personal faith."

In the book The Dangers of Growing Up in a Christian Home (Thomas Nelson), psychologist Donald Sloat writes, "Each of us is different and has to come to grips with his own faith and make it real through personal experience." For that to happen, he notes, teenagers need "supportive environments that provide freedom for struggle so that their faith suits their unique personalities." Use the information in this issue of "The Parent Link" to help you provide an environment that makes it safe for your teenagers to doubt.

Here are some avenues for nurturing healthy doubting in your teenagers:

1. A "safe" family—Foster attitudes that say it's okay to question and doubt. That way, kids will feel free to think critically and explore honestly.
2. A challenging youth group—Help your teenagers find a youth group or Bible study that encourages them to evaluate and internalize biblical truths.
3. Experiential learning—Truth comes alive when teenagers experience it rather than just hear it. For example, have kids play the role of a skeptic or an unbeliever. When kids must think like someone else, they raise questions that will stimulate growth.
4. Media opportunities—Watch for movie clips and listen for song lyrics that center around doubt or questioning. Then discuss them with your teenagers.
5. Share your personal doubts—Don't act as though you've "got it all together." If your kids are going to grow through positive doubting, they need you to be an example.

Recent studies show that as kids grow, their doubts don't fade away. Instead, they multiply.

- Among teenagers, 80% say they have "very few" to "no" doubts at all, while 19% say they have "some" or "many" doubts.
(Soul Searching, Dr. Christian Smith)
- Among college freshmen, 42% say they're secure in their religious beliefs.
(UCLA's Higher Education Research Institute)
- Among college juniors, 65% say they question their beliefs at least occasionally.
(UCLA)

Great Questions to Ask Your Kids

Use these questions to start some in-depth conversations about faith:

1. Is doubt healthy? Does it mean your faith is weak? Why or why not?
2. How skeptical are you? Before believing something, how much evidence or understanding do you need?
3. What things about God and the Bible are the hardest for you to believe, and why?
4. Why do you think God asks us to believe without visual "proof"?
5. Think about a time when you struggled with your faith: How did that affect your relationship with God?

Focus on Prayer

PRAY THAT:

1. Your teenagers will feel comfortable raising doubts and asking questions about their faith.
2. Your teenagers will grow closer to God as they wrestle with problems, relationships, and other tough issues.
3. God will help you be a good listener and support system to your teenagers in all areas of their lives.
4. Amid your own doubts and struggles, God will assure you of his presence and his love for you.

Verse of the Month

Jesus said to Thomas, "Don't be faithless any longer. Believe! You believe because you have seen me. Blessed are those who believe without seeing me." (John 20:27, 29)

When the risen Christ first appeared to his disciples in the flesh, Thomas wasn't present. He adamantly refused to believe unless he could touch Jesus' wounds. We, too, often waver and demand evidence to support our unsteady faith. But God assures us that all the proof and answers we need are available in his holy and unchanging Word, the Bible.

What's Up With Kids

Wondering how you can discover your teenagers' doubts, questions, fears, and feelings? Youth minister Doug Fields, writing at SimplyYouthMinistry.com, says great questions are key:

- 1. The key to asking great questions is to LISTEN. Silence is golden. Many times I'll walk away from a conversation and say, "I'm an idiot, I talked too much." Listening is the best way to communicate care. Try to refrain from thinking ahead and trying to solve someone's problem with a verbal bandage. Listen for someone's needs. What does their body language tell you? Begin the process of identifying needs even before you start to ask questions.
- 2. Ask questions without a question mark. For example, instead of asking, "Did you have a good day today?" say, "Tell me what you did today."
- 3. Don't give up; push with follow-up questions. The second question is often the most difficult one to ask. Hang in there. Keep asking questions (go for six to 10 before you give up). Asking good questions can be the key to opening the door to dialogue (superficial, basic questions), which leads to connection (deeper questions), which leads to growth (challenging, faith-building questions).
- 4. Use your questions as a way to teach. Telling someone exactly what they need to know is ineffective for at least two reasons: The learner is passive and isn't convinced he or she needs the truth. The eternal truths of God and wisdom for everyday living are simply too important (and complex) to reduce to a lecture of platitudes and clichés. A good question puts the "ball in the court" of the other person. Aside from generating verbal interaction, everyone can answer the question in their own thoughts.

MUSIC SPOTLIGHT

Mainstream Artist

Background: This Denver-based alternative-rock band consisting of former schoolmates formed in 2002. The group, best known for its song "How to Save a Life," has a Grammy nomination. Soon after the band's self-titled second album released in February, it knocked Bruce Springsteen from the number-one spot on the Billboard charts.

Albums: The Fray (2009), How to Save a Life (2005)

What Parents Should Know: The Fray's piano-rock songs feature moody, minor-key melodies and introspective lyrics. "You Found Me" is about an imagined encounter with God. The band's songs have received some airplay on Christian radio.

What The Fray Says: Frontman Isaac Slade says, "I have a lot of baggage with [God], and the things I'd like to say to him aren't totally nice. It's like, 'Where were you?' ... If I'm going to be a believer...then I need to have some answers.... Help me make sense of this."

Discussion Questions: If you could meet God, what would you want to say to him (both positive and negative)? What questions do you have for God? To have faith, how much clarity or understanding do you need first, and why?

Christian Artist

Background: This alternative-rock band from Cincinnati formed in 2004. With some friends, brothers Aaron and Ryan Morgan hastily recorded three songs in Aaron's bedroom to meet a "Battle of the Bands" deadline. They placed second, and Seabird was formed. Seabird's songs have been featured on TV shows such as Pushing Daisies, Numb3rs, and Grey's Anatomy.

Albums: 'Til We See the Shore (2008)

What Parents Should Know: Seabird's British-influenced sound has been compared to Coldplay, Ben Folds Five, and The Fray. Lyrically, the band moves beyond Christian clichés to address tough topics such as loss, doubt, and relationships.

What Seabird Says: About the song "Rescue," frontman Aaron Morgan says, "I felt like everything good I was trying to do was ending up in failure and only God could turn it into something beautiful and life-giving... I know many times in my life I've felt like I've had no way out."

Discussion Questions: Read Psalm 72:12-14. Why do we need God's help so often? Think of a time God came to your rescue: How did he help you, and who or what did he use? What are some ways God has transformed your life and your faith?

FILM WATCH

Movie: Slumdog Millionaire

Genre: Crime, Drama, Romance

Rating: R (for some violence, disturbing images, and language)

Synopsis: This film, an Oscar favorite for Best Picture, is about Patel (Jamal Malik), a poor, uneducated teenager from Mumbai. After an astounding performance on the Indian version of Who Wants to Be a Millionaire?, Patel is arrested for cheating. As he tells investigators about his life and his struggles, we find out how Patel knows the game-show answers. Despite some objectionable content in the movie, love and hope triumph over tough conditions.

Discussion Questions: When have you felt like an underdog? What obstacles have you had to overcome at home or at school? Are hard work and good intentions all you need to succeed? Why or why not? When people doubt or challenge you, what motivates you to keep trying?

March 2009

1	2	3	4	5	6	7
8:00 & 10:30 Worship Services 9:15- Jr. & Sr. High Sunday School Class NO SENIOR HIGH NIGHT	HAPPY BIRTHDAY GARRETT CROWE		3:00PM- 5:00PM Confirmation Class (Snacks- Chambers)
8	9	10	11	12	13	14
8:00 & 10:30 Worship Services 9:15- Jr. & Sr. High Sunday School Class 6:00PM- 8:00PM SENIOR HIGH NIGHT@SHEL			3:00PM- 5:00PM Confirmation Class (Snacks- Crowe)			3 RD DAY CONCERT @ THE PALADIUM WORCESTER, MA. MEET @ SHEL 4:00PM
15	16	17	18	19	20	21
8:00 & 10:30 Worship Services 9:15- Jr. & Sr. High Sunday School Class 6:00PM- 8:00PM YOUTH BOWLING @ BLUE FOX			3:00PM- 5:00PM Confirmation Class (Snacks- Moon)
22	23	24	25	26	27	28
8:00 & 10:30 Worship Services 9:15- Jr. & Sr. High Sunday School Class 6:00PM- 8:00PM SENIOR HIGH NIGHT@SHEL			3:00PM- 5:00PM Confirmation Class (Snacks- O'Neils)	HAPPY BIRTHDAY DICK GRANSTRAND
29	30	31
8:00 & 10:30 Worship Services 9:15- Jr. & Sr. High Sunday School Class 6:00PM- 8:00PM YOUTH SERVING SHEL

Upcoming Events For March/April 09' @ SHEL

March 8th- Senior High Night @ SHEL 6:00PM-8:00PM
March 14th- 3RD Day Concert @ The Palladium 4:00PM @ SHEL
March 15th- Youth Bowling @ Blue Fox Rock –n- Bowl 6:00PM-8:00PM
March 22nd- Senior High Night @ SHEL 6:00PM-8:00PM
March 29th- Senior High Serving SHEL- 6:00PM-8:00PM
April 4th- Spring Clean Up @ SHEL with Progressive Lunch
April 17th-18th- 30 Hour Famine
April 26th- Pasta/Dessert Auction after 10:30AM Worship Service

THIRD DAY REVELATION TOUR

On Saturday March 14th we will be part of the Third Day Revelation Tour with special guests Brandon Heath and Revive. This event is open to both middle and high school students. We are ordering tickets immediately and the cost is $25.00. The plan is to meet @ SHEL at 4:00PM, make a supper stop on the Mass. Pike and be at the concert doors by 7:30PM. If you plan on attending see Dick or Scott for ticket information and final details.

AN EVENING @ BLUE FOX ROCK –N- BOWL

On Sunday evening March 15th we are planning a fun event @ Blue Fox Rock-N-Bowl. So dust off those stylish bowling shoes and bring your A game. We will have prizes for high scorer, team high scorer, and for the student who brings the most friends. So invite your friends and meet at the bowling alley at 6:00PM and plan on being picked up by 8:00PM. The cost is $15.00 and this includes pizza. You can bring some extra money for a short time spent in the arcade. This event is for both middle and high school students.

YOUTH GROUP STUDENTS SERVING SHEL

As we are preparing for Holy Week our senior high students will be spending Sunday evening March 29th sprucing up the inside of our church. Put your overalls on, bring all your cleaning supplies along with a positive attitude and we will make our church sparkle. We will meet at 6:00PM and conclude by 8:00PM. Please make sure you eat dinner beforehand. We will spend some time cleaning and organizing the senior high room. We hope to see all middle and high school students there. Yes we will play GA-GA and have dessert.

